6. Comments:

There is so much information available it is hard to retain all of it without the help of the PIC team, and with this school district, in these financially lean times, it is particularly important to be knowledgeable about how to work with the schools! It helped me to communicate with the school and I learned about my rights I gave the information to my son for my grandson I feel more certain about solving problems and deal with my son's education issues

8. Comments:

It was helpful but I still run across problems with my school He (my son) is getting better – I liked that I was taught how to help him and understand him. Working with parents, I can notice the difference between parents who attend PIC workshops and the ones who do not attend. I do not have children in school but I have grandsons and I can use it for them. I have not practiced what I have learned yet, but I will know how to resolve it when the time comes. I have seen that the teacher pays more attention to my son since I started asking questions about the curriculum and my son's progress.

I have repeated what I learned at the workshop to several other parents at my child's school! When I see people I know who need help with their children's education, I refer them to PIC. Share with families how to find help Always-share PIC information with families at my church. I'm program partners Project Village with PIC (Maria Mendoza) – Always share PIC's information! We've talked to my son's teacher and she congratulated us for attending PIC workshops. I am very active in school with my kids- I have been able to share with families at my church.

15. 8. Additional Comments:

There are often workshops that sound interesting, but it is usually hard for me to attend them because of time of day, child care issues, etc. About the only "extra" time I have is in the evening. But then I either have childcare issues, or I'm too exhausted to drive some place. Would it ever be possible to do a workshop via the internet, conference call, SKYPE or something like that? I'm not very technologically savvy.
