The 35th Annual In-service Training Conference is designed as a multicultural experience to provide YOU opportunities to share experiences with parents, business and community leaders, and educators; to attend sessions directed toward enhancing parent/community involvement; and to be involved in educational sessions about practices and issues designed to improve the educational environment for Title I children specifically, and for all children generally.

The plenary sessions, workshops, school visits, and other events during the next several days will provide opportunities to network and share information with one another. By sharing information with each other and discussing the latest best practices and strategies for parental involvement, we are certain to move closer towards the goal of ensuring equity and excellence for each student. Our efforts will help children be even more competitive in the classroom and the future workplace.

Come prepared to interact with presenters, speakers, and conferees; to learn about opportunities to effectively influence the educational environment of children; and to apply what you learn when you return to your home, school, and community.

Exhibits: Invitations have been extended to commercial, for-profit and nonprofit organizations and businesses to have exhibits available for participants to visit between sessions and during free time.
